MONDAY, March 18. 1765. [NUMB. 1341.]

The BOSTON Evening-Post.

Containing the freſheſt Advices, Foreign and Domeſtick.

To the Publiſhers of the BOSTON EVENING-POST.

If you think the following will contribute any Thing to the Amuſement of the ſenſible and polite Part of your Readers, you may inſert it, if not you may omit it.

A LETTER to a Gentleman who had writ too ſeverely againſt WOMEN.

WHAT could incenſe ſo polite a man as Mr. * againſt the moſt amiable part of the creation? is it poſſible that a perſon of his ſenſibility can be out of love with that charming ſex againſt which he levels his ſatyrical irony? No verily, my friend, you are not altogether out of love. It is not an enemy that hath done this.

"In amore hæc ſunt mala."

However if that be the caſe, the next poſt will bring me your recantation.

As the ſun is ſuppoſed to irradiate all the other planets, ſo one ſmile from a particular lady will reflect a pleaſing light on the whole ſex.

(There is notwithſtanding a ſpirit of reviling gone forth againſt the fair part of our ſpecies, and if you are poſſeſſed with that I muſt endeavor to conjure it out of you.---Stand ſtill: let me draw a circle around you---and now I mutter my ſpell---)

The benevolent author of the univerſe, conſulting only the happineſs of his creatures, has appointed variety of means to promote the ſweet union of love. Probably for this end he conſtituted the difference of ſexes. And what has he not done for the female of our own ſpecies to make her amiable in our eyes? All the ſoft and gentle graces, the ſweet ſmiles of winning beauty, the obedient bluſh of modeſty, the charming fears of dependant weakneſs, and the tender apprehenſions of the feeling heart, are for this purpoſe appropriated to that lovely ſex. By what fine proportions, what nicely moulded features, what expreſſive eyes, what delicate complexions are many of them diſtinguiſhed! many of them, whoſe beauty is the leaſt of their praiſe: for their's are the finer ornaments of the mind; ſenſe embelliſhed and humanized by an habitual ſoftneſs of manners, and knowledge collected from the labors of the muſes---their's is the practice of every moral and ſocial duty---all the virtues that are founded in the ſenſibility of the heart are eminently their's. Pity, the attribute of angels, and friendſhip, the balm of life, delight to dwell in the female breaſt. What a forlorn, what a ſavage creature would man be without the humanizing offices of the gentle ſex! how much are his mind and manners ſoften'd and refined by the delicate paſſion of love! Is it not for the fair object of his affections that he ſtudies all the elegant and embelliſhing graces? does he not imitate her poliſhed manners and acquire, as it were by ſympathy, her tender and delicate ſentiments? After the endearing union of their loves and intereſts, when mutual confidence has removed every apprehenſion, what are the pleaſures that he may not enjoy? how are his cares ſoftened, his proſpects heightned, his delights enhanced by communication! how ungrateful then, ſhould he reproach that amiable ſex from whom he derives in ſome meaſure both his virtue and his happineſs!

But I quit the ſubject to attend a lady, whoſe friendſhip I eſteem as my greateſt happineſs; a lady whoſe accompliſhments are an ornament to human nature, and whoſe virtues would do honor to a philoſopher. Adieu, my friend, love reform you.

Effuſions of Friendſhip, Let. 20th.

Dantzick, (a free imperial city, and one of the Hanſe towns) Oct. 15. Letters from Ruſſia adviſe, that great quantities of ſalt-petre have been bought up there, with the conſent of the Empreſs, for the uſe of the King of Pruſſia, even to the excluſion of all other nations; inſomuch that the ſalt-petre which was put on board Engliſh and Dutch ſhips to be ſent to other countries, had been landed again and delivered to the Pruſſian commiſſaries.

Turin, Oct. 27. The French troops deſtined for Corſica, are now quite ready at Toulon, expecting every day final orders to embark; and the 18th inſt. a Genoeſe galley, with five large barks, ſailed from Genoa for Baſtia, to bring back the troops of the republick, as ſoon as the French ſhall have taken poſſeſſion of thoſe places which they are to garriſon.

LONDON, Dec. 8.

An Account of the Plague at Alleppo, in the Year 1761, by the Rev. Mr. Dawes, Chaplain to the Engliſh Factory there.

THIS plague began in the ſummer of 1761; and continued till 1762: but it was preceeded by many calamities, of which we received no authentic or particular account.

The winter of 1756, and 1757 was ſo ſevere, that the mercury in Farenheit's thermometer, after being a few minutes expoſed to the open air, ſunk intirely into the ball of the tube; yet Alleppo lies in latitude 36 deg. which is 16 degrees nearer to the line than London: The cold deſtroyed millions of olive trees that had ſurvived 50 winters, and alſo many thouſand people. The failure of a crop the ſucceeding harveſt produced a famine, for, in this land of indolence and oppreſſion, no proviſion is made but from hand to mouth. The famine was ſo ſevere, that in many places children expired in the arms of their mothers, who devoured them as ſoon as they were dead: Many people form the adjacent mountains and villages, came and offered their wives and children to ſale at Alleppo for a few dollars, to procure a ſhort reſpite from the pangs of hunger, and the approach of death; the men and dogs might be ſcratching at the ſame dunghill for a piece of carrion or a bone. This famine was followed by a plague, which laſted the greateſt part of the year 1758, and ſwept away near 60,000 ſouls.

The years 1750 and 1760 were diſtinguiſhed by troubles and earthquakes; and at the end of March 1761, the plague, which had laid dormant ſince the laſt autumn, made its appearance again, and, about May, ſpread univerſally, and ſome continued to die of it till the middle of September 1762; during the months of June and July, the burials were from 2 to 300 a day; the factory was ſhut up, but the ſound of men ſinging before the corps, and the ſhrieks of women for the dead were never out of their ears; as the heat of the weather obliged them to ſleep on the terrace of the houſes, their reſt was perpetually interrupted by theſe ſounds of horror, which the ſilence of the night made ſtill more affecting.

Among other particulars related of this plague are the following:

A woman was delivered of a child with the plague ſores upon it, though the mother was entirely free. A woman that ſuckled her own child, which was about 5 months old, was ſeized with the plague, and died in a week, yet the child, through it ſucked and lay in the ſame bed, during the whole diſorder, eſcaped the infection: A woman, more than 100 years of age, was ſeized with the plague, and recovered; her two grand-children, one of which was 12 years old, and the other 16, both caught the infection from her and died.

A plague which raged in the Iſle of Cyprus, in the ſpring of 1760, is ſaid to have carried off ten men to one woman, and to have been moſt fatal to the youth of both ſexes.

Extract of a letter from Exeter, Nov. 10.

"An exciſeman in this city, ſeeing a country fellow driving four horſes loaded with cider, aſked him for his permit; the man anſwered, he had none; on this the exciſeman made a ſeizure of the barrels, but the mob ſoon demoliſhed the barrels and let the cider about the ſtreets, and then pelted the officer with apples, turnips, &c. till he was forced to fly for his life."

Meſſ. Murray and Newks, conſiderable ſtrong beer brewers by Leather-lane, Holborn, have juſt built a caſk that holds 21,800 gallons of ſtrong beer, with a proper vacuum for the air, and is ſuperior to that ſome years ſince built at Lady Parſon's works.

They write from Madeira, that 4000 pipes of wine, the vintage of that iſland, have been exported to the ſeveral Britiſh colonies in the Weſt-Indies ſince the peace.

It is ſaid that a regiment of foot will ſoon be raiſed to garriſon Montreal and Quebec.

We are credibly informed, that by virtue of the diſcretionary power lately tranſmitted to his Majeſty's commanders in the Weſt-Indies, in caſe of any future inſult, reprizals are to be made on the ſubjects of ſuch powers who have been guilty; where effects thus ſeized, are to be condemned by a Court Martial, and ſold till full ſatisfaction is made to the parties injured, the ballance, if any, to be remitted to the French or Spaniſh Governor at the neareſt Port.

Capt. Penfold, of the Nancy, lately from Gambia, informs us, that ſoon after he had left the coaſt, he loſt his bowſprit, and five of his men ſeized the veſſel, with an intention to go pirating on the Spaniſh main; they had taken the opportunity, while the Captain, Mate, and two men, were below, to collect what offenſive weapons they could find, and then called, in an inſolent manner, for them to come on deck; but Capt. Penfold, hearing they intended to throw him overboard, and thoſe that would join to oppoſe them in their villainous ſcheme, endeavoured to retake the veſſel, aſſiſted by the two men. They ſtabbed one of the villains, and another jumped overboard; the reſt were eaſily ſecured, and chained to the deck. After this they were reduced to the moſt miſerable diſtreſs, being ſix week without bread, and having but four pounds of beef divided among eleven men, and one pint of water per day. The 4th of September they had the happineſs to make the iſland of Teneriff, after a paſſage of 113 days, having loſt but two ſlaves, notwithſtanding they all had the ſmall pox during the voyage, and no Doctor to attend them.

They adviſe from Holland, that a large ſhip was diſcovered off Scheveninge in Holland the 15th inſt. with her ſails ſtanding; but keeping no regular courſe, it made ſome of the maſters of the fiſhing-boats go on board, where they found no living creature, but very richly laden with all ſorts of merchandize, half full of water, ſuppoſed to be an Engliſh Indiaman, homeward bound.

On monday laſt a Spaniſh gentleman, who ſaid he belonged to a foreign ambaſſador, arrived here from Madrid, by the way of Paris, from which place he imported about 36 ſuits of ſilk, velvet, and embroidered choaths, 36 dozen of ſhirts with Dreſden ruffles, ſome bundles of ſilk, and to moſt of the ſilk ſuits three pair of breeches, and in moſt of the pockets were put pieces of fine lace for ladies wear. Theſe goods eſcaped the vigilance of the officers of the ſea port, but not of thoſe of London, who attended the coming in of the ſtage at the king's head in Southwark, and ſuſpecting that the foreign trunks, which then appeared, contained contraband goods, they carried them to the cuſtom-houſe, where they ſoon found a legal prize to the amount of about 2000l. ſterling.

The Dey of Algiers finds himſelf embarraſſed by the ſeveral treaties of peace which he has made with many European nations, and is therefore trying to find out expedients for declaring them void. One of his predeceſſors, when in the like ſituation, made the following anſwer to our conſul Cole, who reproached him for his fraudulent behaviour:---"Don't you know that the Algerines are a company "of rogues, and that I am their Captain."

A Scotch ſhoemaker has contriv'd an inſtrument of war, by means of which ſix perſons are to do as much execution as a whole regiment. This inſtrument, if we may believe the projector, will diſcharge 4400 balls in the ſpace of two minutes; is quite portable and eaſy of carriage; in caſe of ſurprize may be knocked to pieces & render'd entirely uſeleſs to the enemy; and if recovered again by any change in the field, may be ſet together in leſs than a minute and an half, ſo as to be as fit for uſe as before. In caſe alſo of any ſudden charge either by horſe or foot during the intervals of loading, at the touch of a ſpring a harveſt of bayonets are to riſe with their points directed towards the foe. To this the inventor, who tho' a ſhoemaker, is likewiſe a military man, has added a ſyſtem of diſcipline, relative to the uſe of his machine, perfectly eaſy and ſpeedily to be learnt.

They write from Paris, that the government had laid an annual poll tax of 12 livers per head, on all the negroes in their ſettlements in St. Domingo, to be paid by their maſters.

Thurſday laſt the Santiſſima Trinidada, a very large ſhip, a Spaniſh prize, was ſold for 2000l.

By the Captains Poague and M'Kenzie, arrived at New-York from Ireland, we have the following Advices to the 3d of January.

LONDON, Dec. 13.

THE True Briton, Harriſon, from the Havanna to London, foundered 6 weeks ago off the Lizard, and 13 of the people periſhed. She had 70,000 l. on board for the merchants of this city.

It is now ſaid, that one million only will be raiſed for the ſervice of next year, on an entire new plan, being a lottery of 6 per cent. life annuities.

Tueſday came on before the right hon. chief juſtice Pratt, at the court of common pleas, the cauſe between Mr. Beardmore, an eminent attorney at law, plaintiff, and the earl of Halifax and others, defendants, in an action for falſe impriſonment; when after a hearing of eight hours, the jury in about three quarters of an hour bro't in a verdict for the plaintiff, with 1500 l. And,

Yeſterday came on at the ſame court, the ſeveral cauſes between the Rev. Mr. Entick, Meſſrs. Willſon & Fell, and Mr. Meredith, clerk to Mr. Beardmore, and the earl of Halifax, for falſe impriſonment, when after ſhort trials, the juries gave verdicts in favor of the plaintiffs, with the following damages, viz. Mr. Entick, 20 l. Mr. Wilſon 40 l. Mr. Fell 20 l. and Mr. Meredith 200 l. The warrants upon which theſe plaintiffs were apprehended, were determined to be legal, and the verdicts were given for detaining them longer than was neceſſary before they were examined.

On monday the ingenious Dr. Benjamin Franklin arrived here from Philadelphia, in conſequence of an appointment from the general aſſembly there, to aſſiſt in tranſacting the affairs of that province here.

Recent letters from Hamburg contradict the report of any treaty, alliance or accommodation having as yet been on the carpet between the courts of Verſailles and Warſaw; his Poliſh Majeſty being determined to enter into no engagements with any power, and France the leaſt of all, without conſulting the intereſt of his allies, and the advice of the ſtates.

It is very certain that the Spaniards have laid in a claim, and are actually carrying on law-ſuits with the captors for the prizes taken at the Havannah, and to ſhew the opinion they muſt have of our ſubmiſſive conduct, they dare lay in a claim of thirty thouſand pounds for the deſtruction of a man of war that was little more than half built, and which (with other things) was particularly ordered to be deſtroyed; and it is notorious the captors did not receive near the ſum from the government for the ſale of all the others taken in that port, that were fine ſhips, and ſent home at near thirty thouſand pounds expence to the captors, altho' they might have been ſold to other powers for a greater ſum.

It is ſaid ſome agreeable news has lately been received from the Earl of Rochford, the Britiſh ambaſſador at the court of Madrid.

Its ſaid the total expulſion of the ſociety of Jeſuits from Canada, or wherever they may have footing in any part of Britiſh America, has for ſome time paſt been upon the carpet.

Jan. 1. The Turks and Tarters continue approaching, by little and little, the frontiers of Poland, ſo that it won't be long before the world becomes acquainted with the reſolution of the Divan, which has hitherto been kept ſurpriſingly ſecret.

On the 13th ult. ſeveral tranſports with French troops on board arrived at the iſland of Corſica.

They write from Toulon, that 49 female convicts the eldeſt not exceeding 30 years of age, were embarked on board a frigate for New Orleans, and are intended to be given in marriage to the Indians in the French intereſt, to ſtrengthen their alliance.

Yeſterday Montfort Browne Eſq; kiſſed his majeſty's hand on being appointed lieutenant governor of Weſt Florida.

'Tis ſaid no money will be wanted the enſuing year, and that the finances of the government are in ſo good order that the ſeveral dividends due this chriſtmas, will be paid early this month.

A few days ago a large pike was caught in the river Ouſe, which weighed 28 lb. and was ſold to a gentleman for a guinea; as the cook maid was gutting the fiſh, ſhe found a watch with a black ribbon and two ſeals annex'd. Upon a ſtrict enquiry it appears that the ſaid watch was ſold to a gentleman's ſervant, who was unfortunately drowned about ſix weeks ago, in his way to Cambridge.

Jan. 3. On monday diſpatches of great importance were ſent off for Falmouth, to be put on board the firſt packet for Quebec.

A portmanteau, containing 700 l. in money, was taken up on the ſand near Barnſtaple. They appear to be loſt in Capt. Green bound from New-York to London.

A very extraordinary petition has lately been ſent over from one of our conquered governments, ſign'd by about 200 natives, praying to have their old laws and methods of judicature confirmed to them, inſtead of thoſe lately introduced,

There are now 150 ſail of ſhips lying in the river waiting for a fair wind to proceed on their voyages.

QUEBEC, January 24.

By the poſt from Montreal, we learn, that on the 10th currant, in the evening, a party of men, 25 or 30 in number, with fixed bayonets, came to the goal in ſaid town, and carried off 3 men who were confined therein; they were immediately followed by another party, who took the priſoners from them, and returned them to priſon: Notwithſtanding this they returned about midnight, broke open the goal on the backſide, and carried off the three priſoners, who had not been heard of when the poſt came away.

HALIFAX, Jan. 31.

Extract of a letter from Annapolis in this province, dated December 31ſt, 1764.

Captain Whippy is arrived at laſt, but in a very bad condition, ſo that I believe it will not be poſſible for him to repair the veſſel till the ſpring, his cargo is not much damaged, altho' they were obliged to ſtand to the pump every hour for thirty days before he arirved here.

Feb. 6. On friday laſt ſome Frenchmen being out a gunning near the mouth of the ſouth eaſt paſſage, ſaw a Shallop wrecked and went to her and found a boy dead on board, and on monday morning they came up to town and gave information of the ſaid wreck, and ſaid they believed it to be Mr. Fillis's, and the ſaid Mr. Fillis having got ſome men to go with him, went to the wreck where they found the boy dead on board, and ſearching along the ſhore at a conſiderable diſtance from the Shallop, found the body of his brother Mr. William Fillis and another man drove on ſhore.

Feb. 21. Laſt ſunday was taken up at the dock yard, the body of a man ſuppoſed to have been drowned the night before the Rainbow ſailed from this place, which is more than five months ago.

This day was found drowned on the beach, where the tide had left him, between high and low water mark, at the lime kiln yard, one Timothy Haſſahon, a perſon well known in this town.

NEW-YORK, March 11.

Extract of a Letter from London, Dec. 1.

"The minority, by death and other accidents, are mouldered away almoſt to nothing. The miniſtry are now employed in preparing ſome bills againſt next ſeſſions, which will render them very popular; and they have in particular under their conſideration, the purchaſe of the ſuperiority of the Iſle of Man, which hath been for many years the grand theatre of ſmuggling. This will increaſe the revenue to a prodigious degree. I have alſo to acquaint you, that, by the unuſual care of the officers of the revenue, and by ſome excellent regulations made in it, as well as by the great encreaſe of our commerce in general, the ſinking fund hath this year much exceeded two millions; a ſum, which a man, in a high office, told me neither their hopes nor their wiſhes ever preſumed to reach before."

Several veſſels are arrived at Barbados which were blown off the coaſt laſt winter; and three from New England have likewiſe got in there diſmaſted.

Several ſocieties at Philadelphia, have in order to encourage and encreaſe the growth of Sheep, agreed not to purchaſe any Lamb this ſeaſon.

Laſt week an Ox was killed at the farm of Lewis Morris, Eſq; which weighed 1947 lb.

NEWPORT, March 11.

A ſloop from the Weſt-Indies, for New-London, put in here laſt Saturday. She had been from Barbados 22 days; at which iſland, the maſter informs, 8 or 10 veſſels, juſt before he ſailed, were ſeized by the officers of the King's cuſtoms, for not being able each to produce a certificate that they had given in the bond for molaſſes, agreeable to the late act.

The maſter of the above ſloop ſays, that he heard nothing of one of his Majeſty's cruiſers being taken by a French man of war: So that it is concluded the advice received at St. Kitts, of ſuch a capture, and brought hither by Capt. Smith, was without foundation.

A ſloop belonging to Boſton, 8 days from North-Carolina, put in here laſt Evening. Two veſſels arrived there the day before ſhe ſailed, from Boſton, having been out between 50 and 60 days.

Boſton, March 18.

Meſſrs. FLEETS,

The following having juſt come to Hand, you are deſired by a Friend to inſert in your next,

"With all its Imperfections on its Head."

Extract of a Letter from ROHGSBURG.

"I Was laſt week invited by our friend Montaine to ſee a Tragedy expos'd, at a ſmall village about half a mile from this place; my curioſity was the rather excited, as I underſtood it was Otway's Tragedy of the Orphan, which had lately been tranſlated into High Dutch for that purpoſe; the aſſembly were ſome of the firſt Rank, among whom were the Intendant General de T. the Marſhal de P. and ſundry officers of the army. The ladies made a moſt brilliant appearance.

"I ſat down, expecting much pleaſure from the performance, imagining that all thoſe little errors which had been cavill'd at by your criticks, would have been corrected in the tranſlation; but how was I diſappointed! The tranſlator was very ignorant of the Engliſh idiom, frequently ſubſtituting one word for another of the like ſound, as written for writing, Patterns for Patrons, Proſtitute for proſtrate, &c. &c. and diſguis'd the tragedy in ſuch a manner, by interpolation, abbreviations & wrong accent, that very few of the audience who had ſeen it in the original knew it to be a tranſlation of the ſame.

"The prelude began with a concert of muſick, conſiſting of two Dutch flutes and a fiddle, which entertained the company greatly, ſeveral of whom expreſſed their approbation in the higheſt terms, but I fancy it would not have been ſo well received at Vauxhall or Ranelagh.

"The ſcene (which conſiſted of two bed curtains) was at length drawn up, and the old prologue, which was adapted to a different country, on a particular occaſion, a century ago, was likewiſe tranſlated and ſpoken, the orator keeping a continual ſee-ſaw with his hands, like the wood-ſawers of New-England; I could not help applying that line in the Roſciad,

"He mouths a ſentence as curs mouth a bone."

"Upon a view of the other actors as they came on the ſtage, I found they were much of a piece with the one above-mentioned, but conſider what a mortification it muſt be to one who had ſeen the graceful attitudes of a Garrick and a Barry, to ſee two machines vibrate acroſs the ſtage, like the pendulum of a clock, for ſuch was their pepetual motion.

"The gentle and kind Monimia bluſter'd into an impudent Virago, and in one of the moſt tender and pathetic love ſpeeches, I really thought, by her geſtures, ſhe was going to box with her lover. In ſhort, I cannot tell you half the abſurdities.

tho' I can forgive the Actors, I muſt bluſh for the Audience.——

"I ſhall ſoon take my leave of this place, and am

Your's, &c."

☞ The Piece ſigned Jonathan Pail, (which was ſent us from a neighbouring town remarkable for the manufacture of wooden-ware) came to hand too late to be inſerted in our laſt Monday's paper: and as their annual town-meeting is to be on this day, our publiſhing it now will fail of having the deſir'd effect.——However, with Mr. Pail, we can't but condemn their practice at that meeting of ſelling at vendue to the loweſt bidder, for one year, all ſuch poor perſons who by age or other infirmities of body or mind have put themſelves upon that town for a maintainance; to be both ſcandalous and impious, and contrary to humanity and chriſtianity, and hope a ſtop will be put to ſuch a ſhocking cuſtom for the future.——
